Top 5 Don'ts of Student Management

It can be easy for kids to suck you into a fight or undermine your credibility. Here are the top things to avoid when it comes to managing student behavior on your bus.

1. Don't nitpick; expect what you plan to enforce consistently, and let the rest go
2. Don't get drawn into an argument with a student
3. Don't touch a child unless there is a danger to you or to other students
4. Don't discipline the whole group, focus on the ringleader
5. Don't make idle threats; be prepared to follow through on corrective actions or you'll lose credibility

Make sure you know your district's policies and procedures for handling and reporting student management.
